Have Ann as a Guest on Your Financial Radio Show

Ann M. Hughes provides public speaking and consulting services to male and female financial professionals and financial services organizations across the country to grow sales and improve business functions.

Ann uses her industry experience and expertise in the area of women and finances to partner with financial professionals to appear as a guest on financial focused radio shows for clients and prospects. The economic clout of females is undeniable, but often women do not seek the assistance of financial professionals.

Your radio show can reach women and couples to inform them about the importance of planning for their financial future and the unique circumstances that women face when developing a financial plan. Information is power — use your radio show as a forum to help educate your community and be seen as the go to professional for helping women and couples plan for their financial future.

To have Ann as a guest on your radio show, please contact The Female Affect for in-studio and remote call-in pricing

“Ann, thank you for extending your day and devoting time to our audience. Time went by so quickly. I already received positive feedback from our listeners. Great job!”
